“ Hey, Mom. I don't know why we -- well, I -- feel compelled to keep you informed of the date (that is, provided you can see this in the first place, which, well, for the sake of this post, let's say you can; don't they have clocks in Heaven or wherever?), but here goes: it's May 11th, 2015, which means that you've been gone two years now. Yep, two frickin' years.

I recall when you lamented having to leave us; I wish I could say you've been missing out. Then again, perhaps not. Why would I rub it in? The fact is, we've been missing out. We've been missing out on having you here.

I, of course, hope that you've gone to the better place of which people often speak, or that, at the very least, you've carried on in some way other than in my memory. I've had a few dreams in which you appeared, one in which you spoke. It was great hearing your voice again, which was perfectly accurate. I don't know why, but that surprised me. Anyway, if you have control over such things, you ought to visit more often.

While I kept a lot of your stuff, I haven't had the whatchamacallit to go through it yet. I want to remember, but I don't want it to hurt, you know, but I will someday. You can count on it. When I finally get settled into the house, I plan to go through everything, from videos to pictures, the whole lot. I'll try to make something nice out of it.

I wish you were here. You were the best of us, and what happened to you -- while it happens to others, too -- seems unfair. We shouldn't be here if you aren't. Obviously there's a piece missing from my life (you), and that's frustrating, but, more than anything, I find it frustrating to think on what you're missing out on, and the life you could have been living, enjoying. If you have the power, you can switch places with me anytime.

We'll be visiting today, of course. I sincerely hope there's more to it than such things being for our benefit, those that remain. I hope you're somehow aware of us, even if you're onto bigger and better things, which I hope you are.

Be well, Mom. Love you--

“ My Aunt was the best aunt in the world with the biggest heart. There is not one memory I have of her where she is not either laughing or smiling. I will never forget the first time I slept over her and my uncles house when I was a little girl. She made it one of the best nights I had as a little girl. She treated me like I was her own daughter. I felt loved, happy and safe. Throughout my entire life Aunt Cheryl's laughter made me feel warm and joyful. My Uncle Tony has been and will always be my favorite uncle, but the day he introduced Aunt Cheryl to our family it was like our family became complete. She was one of those few people in this world that on your worst day could make you laugh and make your day seem not so bad after all.

I miss Aunt Cheryl and she will always have a special place in my heart.

I love you Aunt Cheryl. There is not a day that has gone by that I have not thought about you. Thank you for bringing joy into my life and for loving my son so well.

“ One day, when my mom picked me up from elementary school, it was very, very windy. As we made our way through the parking lot, my feet lifted off the ground. I thought, “Oh, no! The wind has picked me up, and is carrying me away!” In my mind, it was my mom holding on to my hand that kept that from happening.

In later years, as I looked back on it, I wondered if maybe I was mistaken, for it no longer seemed plausible that in the absence of a tornado or hurricane, the wind could do that. Instead, I began to think that my lifting up off the ground was not a result of gusting winds, but rather a simple case of my mom tugging on my arm as we hurried to the car. I mean, that happens, right?

Well, I guess I'll never really know for sure.

It's no matter—while this idea that the wind was responsible may seem a tad outlandish, I think-- I think I'll choose to believe in what I thought initially: My mom saved me that day. She saved me from being carried away, taken by the wind, because-- well, because she loved me.

“ Dearest Joe and Anthony

It is difficult for me to put into words and thoughts how much your mom's love and friendship meant to me.

I remember her infectious smile, her wonderful gift of laughter, her immense zest for life. The love of her family. How generous and giving she was. A generous person like your mom had a loving soul. She was unselfish in dealing with people.

I remember going to the playhouse to see Anthony perform. What pride in her eyes when she watched him on stage.

Just doing simple things enriched her life. Going to the park, shopping, feeding animals at the petting zoo. Playing miniature golf. Sharing and caring for you and your father. Loving Ori and Farica, playing fetch with them or them sitting on her lap.

She loved life. The barbecues we shared. Going to church, the theatre, concerts and plays. Going out to eat. Celebrating our birthdays. Such fond memories to me.

Oh how she loved children. When we spent time in the company of children, they gravitated to her because of her warmth & genuine caring.

How positive she was even in the course of her illness. She fought hard and never gave up hope for a cure. I admired her strength so much.

How generous she was. There was very little she would not do to help and support her friends.

She will be sadly missed.

You and Joseph are her legacy. How she loved and cared for you.

How proud of both of you she was.

Cheryl was such a good listener. When I had doubts and fears, she encouraged me. Her advice and comfort helped me weather some difficult times.

I know her spirit and soul are with God. She will be in my prayers every day and in my heart always.

Sincerely and with love to both of you always,

Revelation 21:3,4 states "And he will wipe out every tear from their eyes, and death will be no more, neither will mourning nor outcry nor pain be anymore. The former things have passed away". “ Cheryl and her family lived in my neighborhood. Cheryl was a good friend of mine, and I have been missing her ever since she & her family moved from their home. I will always miss her. Cheryl was always cheerful and full of enthusiasm! She would always brighten my day. Cheryl enjoyed her beautiful home and yard which were both decorated so nicely. My grand-daughter and I always enjoyed walking by the Pandolfo home, as we enjoyed the landscaping with all the pretty statues, which were the inspiration of Cheryl. Sweet Cheryl, was a very good person, she has blessed us all with her kind spirit. “ Dear Uncle Tony; I read what you wrote last night and I could not even write.....for if everyone loved like you loved beautiful Aunt Cheryl this world would be a better place. That what you have to remember your love for her and no one could imagine everything you guys have gone through but read all the inspiring words about Aunt Cheryl; you know how lucky you were to have this amazing wife, mother and truly more than aunt but a friend to all of us.

I was very fortunate to spend time with Aunt Cheryl when you first met; for I do have beautiful memories of her, from being your 3rd wheeler on crashing your beach plans, going to Canada with you guys to being blessed to being in your wedding. The best is when I was looking for my mom with Dominique when she was little. Tuesday was Aunt Cheryl Day, they go to breakfast and then Lord N Taylor, the three were always up to no good on Tuesday. She always had a face that light up room with her gorgeous curly red hair. She call me up to recently; you would never know her pain, she wanted to know about everyone and was checking on all of us on how we were doing. She was beyond an amazing woman that she is already truly missed for she has touched everyone's heart one way or another. She had an aura about her that makes me think she was always an angel in our lives. I am sorry Uncle Tony, Joe and Anthony, for I wish I knew why God needed his Angel back too soon. Please be strong for she loved you guys so much and all of us were beyond lucky to have shared in some part of your Amazing Wife and your Amazing Mom's life.

“ dear uncle Tony,

I am so devastated about the loss of aunt Cheryl. She was a beautiful person inside and out. I prayed for you and her and your 2 sons everynight and prayed she would get better or stop suffering. It was so sad when my mom told me she passed. It was on the day after she passed that my mom told me. I was crying so much and I am still crying now. No matter what I always loved her she had a great heart and always said to never worry about her. I know I'm 11 so this is especially hard for me to take in but I want come across this situation maturely and say I am very sorry for the loss. She will always be in our hearts for the rest of our lives. I wish I would have had the chance to say goodbye and give her a big hug. I will always think of her and when I do I will see an image in my head of a beautiful women with headful of red curls. I knew this day would come soon but I didn't want it to and when it did happen I didn't really know how to respond. At least she will not be suffering anymore and neither will you struggle anymore to take care of her. She is in everyone's heart but especially mine and my sister Inayah. She loved us very much and I know she is now in heaven with angels watching upon us and keeping us safe.

“ Uncle Tony, Anthony and Joseph I feel pain and sorrow for the loss of such a sweet and caring person. Aunt Cheryl left us with many good memories that will never be forgotten. I am so grateful for all the love and affection she offered to me and my family, there is nothing negative that came forth from her, only kindness and a gentle heart. She touched my heart in many ways and I am forever grateful. I am honored that she was a part of my life.

“ My wife is gone, and I am lost.

Although I knew this day was coming for a long time, I could never prepare for the wall of pain and despair that would later hit me; and though I am surrounded by people who love and care about me, I feel so utterly alone. I know that the sun keeps on shining and the birds keep on singing, but my ears hear no music and my eyes see only rain.

On June 23rd, my wife and I would have celebrated our 34th wedding anniversary. I would not trade a single day of our lives together, not for anything. Each day was precious, even those spent battling the disease that would ultimately take her life.

My wife had cancer.

It first appeared in 2000, and after treatment, it looked like the cancer had been defeated. This was not the case however, as it would later return in 2009; and so, for the last three and a-half years, my wife fought valiantly, demonstrating both a strength and courage that I myself have never known, nor could ever hope to. She never complained. She never gave in. Instead, she went about living life on her terms.

My wife was a kind-hearted woman who was loved by many, but it was her ability to give love that made her so special. I will always remember fondly not being able to so much as walk with her through a mall without running into all sorts of people who knew her, and who upon seeing her, had to say hello. She had so much love for her friends and family that even after she became ill, she was much more interested in how you were, offering support, lending an ear and in providing words of comfort and advice than she was in talking about herself and her latest setback.

She was my strength. She was everything, and she made me a better man for loving her.

I hope that our time together is not over, that there is yet a story to be written. My wife is gone, and I am lost...but I pray that she has found her way home.

Good-bye, my love. See you soon--
